The Use of the Rosary.

THE ordinary Rosary of Our Lady as in use among Christians consists of fifty small beads, divided into "decades," or sets of ten, with a large bead between each set. The former indicate the Hail Marys and the latter the Our Fathers. Each decade is connected with one of the Mysteries of the life of our Lord and His Blessed Mother, and as there are fifteen of these Mysteries, the beads must be said three times over to complete the entire Rosary. Only the members of a few religious communities make the complete devotion, however. Devout persons who use the beads say the five decades, varying the Mysteries according to the day or season.

The Joyful Mysteries would naturally be used from the beginning of Advent until the Feast of the Purification; the Sorrowful Mysteries from Septuagesima when the Church sets out on the way to Calvary, until Easter Eve; and the Glorious Mysteries from Easter until the Octave of Corpus Christi. During the rest of the year they may be varied as pious inclination may suggest.

Attached to the Rosary is a Cross, two large and three small beads, which are used for the preparatory prayers. The Apostles' Creed is usually said on the Cross, the Our Father on the first large bead, three Hail Marys on the small beads, and the Gloria Patri on the second large one. Then follow the Mysteries in their proper order, each being preceded by an Our Father, and followed by a Gloria.

All these prayers and invocations are, however, only what has been called "the body of the Rosary." Its soul, that which gives the devotion a spirit and life peculiar to itself, is the accompanying meditation on the life of our Lord and His Blessed Mother. The meditations are as a general rule quite informal, and are made while saying the prayers. A simple help is to insert in the Hail Mary after the Holy Name "Jesus," the announcement of the particular Mystery, or of some circumstance connected with it. For example, if one is meditating on the Nativity of our Lord, after the Holy Name might be said: "Who was born of a Virgin for love of me." Or this could be varied for each Hail Mary, as: "Who was laid in a manger for love of me," "Who received the worship of the shepherds," etc.

A method which has been adopted by many, and which is set forth in this book, is to repeat between the Hail Marys a verse of Scripture illustrative of the Mystery under consideration.

Beginners will need to guard themselves in their choice of subjects for meditation. It would be a mistake to allow a merely natural aptitude for meditation on certain of them to lead to the neglect of the others. We should not let the sweet mysteries of the Holy Childhood hold us back from entering upon those awful solemnities which culminated on Calvary; nor should these again keep us from pressing forward to the contemplation of the glorified Life of our Lord and His Saints.

There are many other arrangements of the Rosary that are in wide use. "The Chaplet of the Blessed Sacrament" in this book is prepared for use on Thursdays, and at other times, in honour of the Most Holy Sacrament of the Altar.

In conclusion we would say a word about the regularity of its use. One finds occasionally a person who says, "I tried it, but it did me no good"; but further inquiry almost always brings out the fact that the trial was spasmodic and therefore necessarily unfruitful. If we wish to use the Rosary, let us first decide just how often we can say it, and then be very careful to be faithful. It is perhaps best at first not to attempt it every day. Twice a week, besides Sundays and festivals, would be a good beginning. Above all things let us not begin with the idea that we are testing it. The Rosary is not on trial; it was tested and its place as a Christian devotion assigned it many centuries ago by men and women immeasurably holier and wiser than we are. Our thought should be quite the reverse, namely, that we are on trial; that God is giving us a new opportunity to realize the great Mysteries of the Faith with a vividness which perhaps we never knew before, and that to endure the test successfully we have to improve this opportunity with all the powers of intellect, affections, and will. If we are regular and humble, our case will surely be exceptional if it does not prove a great spiritual blessing.

Common Forms

OUR FATHER, Who art in Heaven, Hallowed by Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil. Amen.

Hail Mary, full of grace, the Lord is with thee: Blessed art thou among women; and blessed is the Fruit of thy womb, Jesus. Holy Mary, Mother of God, pray for us sinners, now, and at the hour of our death. Amen.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost: As it was in the beginning, is now and ever shall be, world without end. Amen.

O Saviour of the world, Who by Thy Cross and Precious Blood hast redeemed us: Save us and help us, we humbly beseech Thee, O Lord.

Preface

THIS manual has been found helpful by a number of devout persons among whom it has been circulated in MS. It is now put forth for general use with the hope and prayer that, by the guidance of the Holy Ghost, it may lead others to a fuller appreciation of those Mysteries of the life of our Blessed Lord and His Holy Mother which have been so well compared to the fifteen steps which led the worshipper in God's Temple of old up toward the Holy of Holies.

The texts selected are those which the Saints of many centuries have used in meditating on these mysteries of God. Those from the Old Testament are the type or prophecy, and those from the New, the fulfillment, of the truths to be considered.
